LOVES MYSTERY.

Your bothouse flowers you give to me to hold;
And while I breathe their perfume rich and rare,
I wonder why my thoughts are other-where,
And why I scent the lilies sweet of old
That "neath my eyes laid bare their hearts of gold
In those dear days of youth and faith so fair,
When life was like a breath of summer air,
Or fairly tale with but a chapter told.

Your red red lips you give to me to kiss;
And I were less than man did I not prize
The gift, And yet—I needs must own to this—
I never look into your tender eyes
But that I see her eyes beyond, and miss
The vanished thrill wherein love's mystery lies.

A MONTH'S RECORD.

Under the Administration of Grover Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The first month of Cleveland's administration has ended, and the crowd of office-seekers who make personal visits to the White House shows no diminution in number. More than a hundred callers, perhaps two hundred, came to see the President yesterday and the number of visitors appears to be increasing rather than decreasing as time goes by. It has been noticeable that several States are poorly represented by their citizens in the case of Maryland hardly a candidate for office has seen Mr. Cleveland. The explanation given for this is that Senators and Representatives from these States have agreed to withhold their influence until after the rush for office is over, and the candidates have been directed to keep away from the President under pain of losing the endorsements they desire.

During Cleveland's first term the Marylanders formed a large portion of those who visited the White House, the natural result of the close proximity of Maryland to Washington. Since his second term began, Cleveland has discovered that Virginia is the banner State in point of number of her aspirants for Federal positions. Tennessee and Georgia candidates have also been numerous, and candidates from South Carolina, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky have not kept in the back ground. New York and Ohio, two of the largest States have furnished comparatively few candidates who have made personal calls on the President in this respect as might have been expected. Recognition of the home rule principle by the President in his appointments yesterday has been much satisfaction to the delegates from the territories, and the Democrats in the District of Columbia. That the President will make territorial appointments earned was affirmed by him today in conversation with a Congressman who is interested in the matter. Mr. Cleveland said that he would appoint to territorial positions, both local and general, only men who were acceptable to the people of the Territory, and the city, town or district within it, on account of their residence there, and good standing. If an exception was made, he said, it would be because he could find no resident fitted for the place he desired to fill. In such a case he would go outside the lines of the territory concerned and select the best man he could find who would accept.

APPOINTMENTS YESTERDAY.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The President sent the following nominations to the Senate to-day:
Wm. Lochren, Minnesota, Commissioner of Pensions.
Postmasters:—Connell P. Priestly Huntington, Tenn.; James T. McCutchen, Jackson, Tenn.; Howson H. Wallace, Fredericksburg, Va.; Edwin Tucker, Newport News, Va.; Egan B. Brice, Suffolk, Va.
Hannis Taylor, Alabama, envoy extraordinary to Spain. Alabama will be delighted with the appointment. All of the people love him. That is what Representative Oates said of the nomination of Hannis Taylor to be Minister to Spain and Mr. Oates should know, for it was at his suggestion that the nomination was made. Mr. Taylor is a lawyer living at Mobile and his reputation is of the first water, one of his arguments made before the Supreme Court in opposition to the constitutionality of the anti-lottery law being in evidence on that point. But first of all Mr. Taylor is a scholar of high attainment and his contributions to historical literature have made him well known to literary men, although he is comparatively young. His life work is the "Origin and growth of the English constitution." But one volume of this work has been published as yet, but it has already been adopted as a text book in seven Universities. It is Mr. Taylor's desire to conclude the history during his stay in Spain. He was strongly recommended to Secretary Bain by Senator Morgan as one of the arbitrators or counsel in the Bering Sea Arbitration, and was also strongly endorsed by Mr. Phelps and some leading lawyers of New York.

Taxation in New York.

The New York legislature has tackled the knotty question of taxation. A joint committee of both houses have submitted an elaborate report on the subject, and, strange to say, the report is unanimous. The committee rejected a proposition for local option in taxation, but favored a tax on all mortgages. They think it will be unwise to abolish the general property tax at once, though they believe that result can be attained at no distant day. The committee believe that the tax on mortgages could be made to take in large part the place of all other taxes. A tax of one-half of one per cent. on all real estate mortgages they consider an ideal tax. As mortgages are a matter of record, this tax could not be evaded and the committee think the low rate it suggests would make mortgages a favorite investment and that it would have a tendency to reduce the rate of interest. The committee go a long way in their recommendations as to the abolition of all taxes on general property, real and personal. They would supply the revenue that now comes from this source by taxes on corporations, inheritances, mortgages, etc., as is now done in Pennsylvania, and to a large degree in Connecticut. The committee oppose the income tax, for which several of the leading New York newspapers have been contending so earnestly. It would also exempt from taxation deposits in savings banks. The report is decidedly radical in its nature, and there is little likelihood that all its suggestions will be adopted. In New York, as elsewhere, the question of how taxation can be made most equitable is a mixed one.—Atlanta Journal.

CAPT. GLENN IN CHARLOTTE.

He Considers His Prospects Good—Gov. Carr's Strong Letter.

Capt. R. B. Glenn, of Winston, one of the three candidates for the western district attorneyship (the others being Col. Covington and Mr. Elias) was in Charlotte yesterday. The first thing that Capt. Glenn did on being interviewed by an Observer man was to enter a protest against the Observer's special Washington reports in regard to the district attorneyship. He said they were always and invariably written from a Kope Elias standpoint. "What are your prospects Mr. Glenn?" "Very good, indeed. I have both Senators' endorsements and all of the State delegation's in the House except one. I am backed by the Supreme Court and the Governor and ex-Governor. I have just received the strongest sort of a letter from Gov. Carr. He writes that he would look upon my failure to receive the nomination in the light of a public calamity. "I wish you would say further that all these reports as to Mr. Cleveland favoring one or another candidate for the place are without foundation. Congressman Alexander tells me that Mr. Cleveland told him he had not made up his mind yet. I saw Capt. Alexander this evening and he says that he had talked with Mr. Cleveland and he told him that the appointment to the district attorneyship would not be made until after the Senate adjourned, which would probably be Monday."

INCONGRUITIES.

BY RALPH E. HOYT.

Our language is so plain and clear
That if we say a smoker smoked,
When words from human lips we hear,
We ought to say the smoker spoke.

If loud the wind was heard to blow,
In truth we say it fiercely blew,
Then why not say of fallen snow,
The snow king came and willy nilly snow?

And as we mention one who ran,
By saying that we saw him run,
It through a glass the sky we scan,
Of course the sky we then have seen
And if we say the boy did slide,
Or that we knew the boy has slid,
We may remark of streamer wide,
Though narrow one, it since has widened.

The Columbian Mayor.

The World's Fair at Chicago would have been incomplete had any other than Carter Harrison been elected Mayor for the occasion. The city itself will be a main part of the show, and the city would not be itself without this typical citizen at the head of its affairs. Carter Harrison is a characteristic institution at Chicago. A thorough demagogue, bright shrewd and good-humored and of imperturbable impudence; hampered by no conventional scruples and the hero of toughs and rowdies, though himself a man of education and attainment; a big, noisy, breezy and broad bannered Westerner, no man could better represent the genius of Chicago than this many times elected Mayor. In a dispatch announcing his success Mayor Harrison claims the victory for Democracy. It is partly that, no doubt, whether the term be used in a general or in a party sense, but is also partly a personal victory and mainly it is a triumph of an easy-going "wide open" policy as against severity and respectability. Under Harrison's administration, everything will go during this Columbian year and visitors will see her glory.

Little Florence Boylan, daughter of

Mr. James Boylan of this city, had her face crushed in above the nose, and sustained the most serious injury of any of the helpless victims.

Little Annie Root, daughter of Mr. Charles Root, of this city, had one limb broken.

Little Addie Snow, daughter of Miss Matterson, 13 years old, was badly bruised and rendered helpless by her injuries, but no bones were broken.

Dr. Smedes' two little twin daughters, who sat on the front seat of one of the cars were terribly hurt. One of the little girls had one or possibly both limbs broken and the other sustained serious injuries.

Miss Adelle Mortmaine, of Georgia, was severely bruised and cut, but no bones were broken.

At latest accounts last night the condition of the sufferers was in each case as favorable as could be expected. Little Florence Boylan probably sustained the most serious injuries and her case was considered the least hopeful. It was, however, thought last night that if she survived the night her condition would be less precarious. The Misses Smedes were doing well. Miss Snow's injuries are not now considered serious and she is doing well. Miss Green was also doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances and the condition of all is hopeful.

At midnight the condition of Florence Boylan was very low and the possibilities for her survival were considered very doubtful. One of Mr. Smedes' daughters who has been unconscious ever since the accident is thought to have concussion of the brain.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Collision On The Fair Grounds Switch Back.

Young ladies cruelly injured. An awful

Accident to the Scholars of St. Mary's School. Full Details of the Sad Affair.

Raleigh News-Observer.

The happy and beautiful Easter season was ruthlessly broken in upon yesterday by a terrible and almost tragic disaster.

About half-past 10 o'clock yesterday morning a courier came dashing in to the city from the State fair grounds, and brought the news that there had been a heart rending accident there.

A large number of the young ladies of St. Mary's school, accompanied by Dr. Smedes and some of the teachers, were enjoying a holiday at the fair grounds, their principal pastime being the switch-back.

There were probably fifty young ladies on the grounds, mostly the juvenile scholars, including many of the little daughters of our best known citizens. They were riding on the switch-back and having a happy frolic, with merry childish laughter ringing out in the beautiful morning sun-light.

A TERRIFIC CRASH.

All at once the innocent glee was turned into heart-piercing screams of agony. The two cars of the switch-back had collided while both were running at a terrible velocity and nearly a dozen maimed and stunned little girls were hurled out upon the iron tracks and upon the ground, where they lay in helpless agony, cruelly cut and mangled by the splintered wreckage of the smashed cars.

SEVEN BADLY HURT.

Those who rushed to the rescue saw as many as seven of the innocent little girls lying in a state of helpless injury, some of them maimed for life, and probably as many more were badly hurt.

WHAT WE ALL THINK.

If none were sick and none were sad,
What service could we render?
I think if we were always glad
We scarcely could be tender.

Did our beloved never need
Our patient ministrations,
Earth would grow cold and miss indeed
Its sweetest consolation.

If sorrow never claimed our heart,
And every wish were granted,
Patience would die and hope depart—
Life would be disenchanted.

PROGRAMME OF THE REVIEW.

Secretary Herbert Gives the Movement of the Fleets.

The Washington Post announces that the Secretary of the Navy has decided upon the official programme of the review of the United States and foreign ships of war which by act of Congress will take place in New York Harbor on the 27th inst.

The men-of-war will be anchored in two columns, extending from Twenty-sixth street up North river, the foreign ships on the New York side. While the Dolphin, carrying the President of the United States is passing between the columns, that portion of North river, between the American columns and the New York shore will be closed, and all traffic and passage suspended. After the Dolphin has anchored at the head of the line vessels of all kinds may circle around the fleet, going up on the New Jersey side of the river, but the passage between the two columns will be closed until the President has landed from the Dolphin and the review thereby terminated.

The President and members of his cabinet will be received on board the Dolphin at 10:30 a. m. off Twenty-third street, North river. The Dolphin will then get under way, and, followed by the Coast Survey steamer Blake and the steamer Monmouth, will proceed up the river between the columns of United States and foreign men-of-war. The Blake will carry the members of the District Court, the Monmouth the Judges of the Supreme Court, Senators and Representatives of the United States, and Governors of States accompanied by one staff officer. No other invitations will be issued for the review.

The Dolphin proceeding between the columns will as she passes the various ships be saluted with the honors laid down by international treaties due to the chief of state, and arriving at the head of the columns will anchor between them. The Blake will anchor at the head of the foreign, and the Monmouth of the American column.

The flag officers and the captains of the men-of-war will then be received on board of the Dolphin, and be presented to the President of the United States, who will entertain them at lunch. Lunch will at the same time be served on the Blake and Monmouth to the guest on board.

The review will terminate by the return of the Dolphin, Blake and Monmouth through the lines, and when the President's flag is hauled down from the Dolphin it will be saluted with twenty-one guns by all of the men-of-war present.

Invitations for the United States officials designated will shortly be issued and upon their acceptance cards will be sent admitting them, accompanied by one lady each, to the Monmouth.

A great many applications have been made to the Secretary of the Navy to allow newspaper correspondents transportation upon the vessels of the fleet from Hampton Roads on the 24th of April to New York harbor. Owing to the fact that he would be able to accommodate very few and his disinclination to discriminate he has decided to allow representatives of the press associations to sail upon one of the vessels and not to issue permission to any other correspondents. The associations are allowed transportation with the fleet upon condition that they will furnish to any newspaper applying, which is not represented by one or the other of these associations, copies of their reports.

The official programme of the movement of the fleet, their dispositions, and all details relating to their preparation for and anticipation in the review will be issued by Rear Admiral Gherardi, who will be in charge of the representatives of the press all proper facilities for visiting the vessels at anchor in Hampton Roads.

It is very poor economy to endeavor to relieve a cold by neglecting it, when a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure it at once.

THE ASPIRATIONS OF J. M. H.

He Talks About Office, Philosophizes On the Outcome and Winds up with Poetry.

Dear "Joe Argus"—Ever since reading your editorial on the office seeking man, I have lain as still as a skipper in a spoil-ham, and if the Goldsboro post office has asked me it has done so in such a slipshod way that I have not found it out; at any rate I am still paying postage, while John R., like Mordecai of old, still sits at the collection of "Box Rents."

This is not as it should be, and when I left the opera house at 4 o'clock on the morning of 9th November '92, coarse with howling, and dry for the lack of beer, I expected that before nut grass begun its spring blossoming I would be a permanent fixture in the post office, and that John R. would be pulling a bell cord over a hay burner. I always was dubious about waiting to be sought, I'd rather assist in the seeking, and I am afraid all the aspirants did not read your editorial; but for your advice, I would have made things hum for that position. I would have climbed a big hill (Hill) overlooking the quiet holmes (Holmes) below and in my right (a freeman (Freeman) would have told Mr. Cleveland that I wanted the place; that I had been an original Cleveland man ever since the 9th of November last, when it was found he had swept the country from Maine to California, including the first ward—and if he had hesitated, I would have told him further, that unless that position was forthcoming, there would be trouble in the first ward in '96, and that David Hill would not be the cause of it. If I miss getting this place it is going to be a disappointment to me, for unless I can get that, I have got to go to work, and if the huckleberry and salad crop fails, it means hard work. I shall have to plant more collards; greens will be an item with white meat at twelve cents a pound; factors will have to be an important factor in the make up of the ballast in the stomach cargo at my house this summer.

But I am hoping for a good garden crop, the weather looks propitious and, after a hard winter, spring with all its beauty and loveliness and lazy feeling is beginning to commence operations and I feel encouraged. Spring chickens are coming on and will soon be ripe. I am giving some attention to raising chickens of late, I thought I was doing all the work myself, but found out a few days ago that there was a negro helping me, I was raising small ones, the negro was "raising" grown ones.

Spring time is surely coming
And it won't be very long
'Till you hear the croaking bull-frog,
And the mocking bird's sweet song,
The bees will soon be swarming,
And the martins on the fly,
And returning fishermen meet you
With their everlasting lie.
Spring time is fast approaching,
And pretty soon you'll see
The house-fly on his summer tour,
Likewise the skipping flea,
The sun will soon shine warmer,
The trees will be in bud,
And you'll want your morning bitters
To renovate your blood.

Welcome, welcome, springtime,
The best of all the year,
I can then drink Coca Cola,
And, temporarily, drop beer.
But all the seasons suit me,
I've no cause to fret or pout,
For Cleveland's hustling lively
In turning the rascals out. J. M. H.

Fire in Petersburg.

PETERSBURG, Va., April 5.—The fire on Sycamore street was gotten under control at 2:30 o'clock this morning after causing damage amounting to about $25,000. The buildings owned by C. A. Newbern Journal: It has been said that an egg laid on Good Friday will not spoil—simply dry up—the same phenomenon is sometimes attributed to eggs laid on Easter Sunday. Mr. Moses Roberts has made a test of the matter by keeping an egg laid on Easter of last year until the present. On breaking it judge of his surprise to see that it had neither spoiled nor dried up, but retained every indication of a fresh laid egg. Whether it is a mere happen so with this one egg or not, the incident is remarkable.

Why weary your throat and patience with that wretched cough, when a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure you promptly.
